Day 12

Overnight, Peggy's Cove grew quite

Soft flakes fell. Soft frost sparkled.

By morning, the little tree shone.

Shells. Ribbons. Letters. Hats. All glowed together.

Everyone gathered, even the baker, the kids, the artists, the tourists...everyone who gave the tree love and hope.

They all stopped. They all stared. They all smiled.

No one had said much; they didn't need to.

The little tree had said enough.

And there on Christmas morning, the smallest tree shone its brightest.
